Abu Bakr was one of the first people to convert to Islam, which means he was one of the Prophet's earliest companions. Since the Prophet was born in 570 CE, this suggests that Abu Bakr was born sometime in the 560s.

According to the most widely accepted account, Aisha bint Abu Bakr was born in Mecca, Arabia, in the year 614 CE. This date is based on a number of historical sources, including hadith narrations and the writings of early Islamic historians.

Aisha bint Abu Bakr married the Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him) in 622 CE, according to the most widely accepted account. This date is based on a number of historical sources, including hadith narrations and the writings of early Islamic historians.

The most widely accepted account of the marriage of Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him) to Aisha bint Abu Bakr places the event in 622 CE, shortly after the Prophet's migration from Medina to Mecca. Aisha was still a young girl at the time, but she was known for her intelligence, piety, and maturity. She was also deeply devoted to the Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him).

Determining the precise age of Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him) at the time of his marriage to Aisha bint Abu Bakr is challenging due to the limited historical records available. However, based on existing sources, it is estimated that he was between the age of 52 and 54 years old at the time of their marriage.

Abu Bakr had six children: three daughters and three sons. Their names are:

Daughters:

Aisha
Asma
Umm Kulthum

Yes, it was common for girls to be married at a young age in Arabian culture during the time of the Prophet Muhammad. This was due to a number of factors, including the following:

- High infant mortality rates: In the Arabian Peninsula, many children did not survive past infancy. As a result, parents often married their daughters off at a young age to ensure that they would have children of their own.
- Tribal alliances: Marriage was also used to form alliances between tribes. By marrying their daughters to men from other tribes, families could strengthen their political and economic ties.
- Economic considerations: In many cases, families could not afford to support their daughters indefinitely. Marrying them off at a young age was one way to ensure that they would be taken care of.

It is important to note that not all marriages in Arabian culture were child marriages. In fact, there are many instances of women who married later in life. However, child marriage was a common practice, and it was often seen as a way to protect and provide for young girls.

Who gave the name India to the country?

The name India is derived from the river 'Sindhu' or Indus as called by the ancient Greeks. S from Bharat became I in the west, hence Iqs became Indus. And the land of Indus was called Indica or India.
Hinduism does not have a single holy book that guides religious practice.

Shruti And Smriti ,

Shruti, (Sanskrit: "What Is Heard") in Hinduism, the most-revered body of sacred literature, considered to be the product of divine revelation. Shruti works are 3 to have been heard and transmitted by earthly sages, as contrasted to, Smriti, or that which is remembered by ordinary human beings. Though Shruti is considered to be the more authoritative, in practice the Smriti texts are more influential in modern Hinduism.

The revealed texts encompass the four Vedas—Rigveda, Yajurveda, Samaveda, and Atharvaveda—and the Brahmanas (ritual treatises), the Aranyakas ("Forest Books"), and the Upanishads (philosophical elaborations on the Vedas that form the basis of much of later Hindu philosophy and theology).

Muhammad bin Qasim 712 first war on India was a Umayyad general who conquered parts of Sindh and Punjab regions in present-day Pakistan in the early 8th century. He is considered one of the early Muslim conquerors in the Indian subcontinent. However, after his conquest, Muslim rule in India was not continuous and there were several Muslim dynasties that emerged at different times in Indian history. Here is a list of some of the pro Mahmud of Ghazni: Mahmud of Ghazni was a Turkic ruler who invaded India several times between 1000 and 1027 CE. He is known for his conquests of the Punjab region, including the famous Somnath Temple in Gujarat.

Muhammad Ghori: Muhammad Ghori was a ruler of the Ghurid dynasty who conquered parts of northern India in the late 12th and early 13th centuries. He defeated the Rajput king Prithviraj Chauhan in the Second Battle of Tarain in 1192, establishing Muslim rule in Delhi.

Qutb-ud-din Albak: Qutb-ud-din Albak was a slave of Muhammad Ghori who became the first Sultan of Delhi in 1206. He is known for building the Qutub Minar in Delhi, which is a UNESCO World Heritage Site.

Ilutmish: Ilutmish was a slave of Qutb-ud-din Albak who became the Sultan of Delhi in 1211. He expanded the Delhi Sultanate by conquering parts of Central Asia and southern India.

Alauddin Khilji: Alauddin Khilji was the second Sultan of the Khilji dynasty who ruled Delhi from 1296 to 1316. He is known for his conquests of Gujarat, Rajasthan, and Madhya Pradesh.

Timur: Timur was a Turco-Mongol conqueror who invaded India in 1398. He sacked Delhi, massacred its inhabitants, and carried away a vast amount of loot.

Babur: Babur was a Timurid prince who founded the Mughal Empire in India in 1526. He defeated the Sultan of Delhi, Ibrahim Lodi, in the Battle of Panipat and established Mughal rule over northern India.

Akbar: Akbar was the third Mughal Emperor who ruled India from 1556 to 1605. He expanded the Mughal Empire to include most of the Indian subcontinent and is known for his policy of religious tolerance.

Aurangzeb: Aurangzeb was the sixth Mughal Emperor who ruled India from 1658 to 1707. He is known for his conquests of the Deccan region in southern India and his policy of religious intolerance. Ahmad Shah Durrani: Ahmad Shah Durrani SS BN-day Afghanistan and Pakistan. He invaded India several times in the mid-18th century and established his authority over parts of northwestern India.

Note that this list is not exhaustive and there were many other Muslim rulers who conquered parts of India at different times in history.

After Muhammad bin Qasim, there were several Muslim rulers who invaded India, but it is difficult to determine who was the first. The history of the Indian subcontinent is complex and there were many conflicts and wars between different kingdoms and empires, including both Hindu and Muslim rulers.

Some of the earliest known Muslim invasions of India include those by Arab general, Tariq ibn Ziyad, who led the conquest of Sindh in 711 CE, and the Umayyad governor of Iraq, Hajjaj ibn Yusuf, who sent several expeditions to India in the 8th century.

However, these invasions were mostly confined to the western coast of India and did not lead to the establishment of a permanent Muslim presence in India. The first Muslim empire in India was established by Mahmud of Ghazni, who invaded India in the early 11th century and launched a series of raids on northern India over a period of several decades.

So, while it is difficult to determine the exact timing of the first Muslim invasion of India after Muhammad bin Qasim, Mahmud of Ghazni is generally considered to be the first Muslim ruler to establish a foothold in northern India.

Here is a list of some of the Muslim rulers who established their rule in India after Muhammad bin Qasim and before 1800 CE:

The Indus Valley Civilization, also known as the Harappan Civilization, was an ancient civilization that existed in the Indus Valley region of South Asia, primarily in what is now Pakistan and western India. The civilization flourished between approximately 2600 BCE and 1900 BCE, although its decline and ultimate collapse remain a subject of debate among historians and archaeologists.

The Indus Valley Civilization is known for its sophisticated urban planning, including the construction of well-planned cities with advanced sewage and drainage systems, as well as for its impressive craftsmanship in areas such as pottery, metallurgy, and jewelry-making. The civilization also had a complex social and economic system, with evidence of trade networks extending as far as Mesopotamia and other parts of the ancient world.

The Harappan script, which was used by the civilization for record-keeping and communication, remains undeciphered, which has limited our understanding of the civilization's literature and historical records. Despite this, archaeological excavations of Harappan sites have provided important insights into the lives and culture of this ancient civilization.

The Harappan Civilization, also known as the Indus Valley Civilization, existed during the Bronze Age, roughly between 3300 BCE and 1300 BCE. It was one of the world's earliest urban civilizations, with major settlements in what is now Pakistan and northwest India. The civilization is named after Harappa, one of its prominent archaeological sites. The exact timeline of the H

Hindus rulers

After the decline of the Harappan Civilization, India saw the rise and fall of many different empires and kingdoms, some of which were Hindu in character, while others followed different religions. Here are some examples of Hindu rulers in India after the Harappan Civilization:

Mauryan Empire (321-185 BCE): The Mauryan Empire was founded by Chandragupta Maurya, who unified much of the Indian subcontinent under his rule. His grandson, Emperor Ashoka, converted to Buddhism during his reign, but the Mauryan Empire remained largely Hindu in character. Gupta Empire (320-550 CE): The Gupta Empire was a major Hindu dynasty that ruled over much of northern India. The Guptas are known for their patronage of the arts and sciences, and their period is sometimes referred to as a "golden age" of Hindu culture.

Chalukya Dynasty (543-753 CE): The Chalukya Dynasty was a Hindu dynasty that ruled over parts of southern and central India, known for their patronage of literature, art, and architecture.
Rashtrakuta Dynasty (753-982 CE): The Rashtrakutas were a powerful Hindu dynasty that ruled over parts of western, central, and southern India, known for their military prowess and cultural achievements.
Chola Dynasty (300s BCE-1279 CE): The Cholas were a Hindu dynasty that ruled over parts of southern India and Sri Lanka, known for their maritime trade and cultural achievements.
Vijayanagara Empire (1336-1646 CE): The Vijayanagara Empire was a powerful Hindu empire that ruled over much of southern India, known for its patronage of art, architecture, and literature.

Note that this is not an exhaustive list, and there were many other Hindu kingdoms and empires that ruled over different parts of India after the decline of the Harappan Civilization. There were also other religious traditions that coexisted alongside Hinduism, including Buddhism, Jainism, and later, Islam.

The number of Indus rulers is not known as the Indus Valley Civilization, also known as the Harappan Civilization, did not have a centralized political system or a system of monarchy. The civilization was composed of many cities and towns, each with its own governing structure.

In contrast, there were a total of 16 Muslim dynasties that ruled over various parts of the Indian subcontinent between the 12th and 19th centuries CE. These dynasties were:

Ghurid dynasty (1192-1206)
Mamluk dynasty (1206-1290)
Khilji dynasty (1290-1320)
Tughlaq dynasty (1320-1413)
Sayyid dynasty (1414-1451)
Lodi dynasty (1451-1526)
Bahmani Sultanate (1347-1527)
Vijayanagara Empire (1336-1646)
Gujarat Sultanate (1407-1573)
Bengal Sultanate (1352-1576)
Deccan Sultanates (1490-1596)
Mughal Empire (1526-1857)
Adil Shahi dynasty (1489-1686)
Qutb Shahi dynasty (1512-1687)
Nizam Shahi dynasty (1490-1636)
Asaf Jahi dynasty (1724-1948)

Note that the above list includes both dynasties and sultanates, and some of these ruled over different parts of India at different times.

Mandukya Upanishad 1.1 "Om is Brahman. The past, present, and future are woven into it. All that exists is nothing but that."
Svetasvatara Upanishad 4.6 "He is concealed in all beings, all-pervading, the inner Self of all creatures. He is the witness, the silent sage, the unborn, the all-pervading, the imperishable, the self-effulgent."

From Vedas "na tasya pratima asti" ("There is no image of him")

Rig Veda:

1.164.46: "He who has neither form nor shape, who neither dies nor decays, him the wise perceive within their hearts. Those who understand this become immortal."
10.82.1: "Who is the God to whom we should offer our sacrifice? Who is the one worthy of our praise? To whom should we go with our offering? He who holds aloft this universe, who is its king, who pervades and rules over all worlds—is not he Indra?" (While not specifically stating formlessness, this verse emphasizes the vastness and majesty of the divine, hinting at its beyond-form nature.)

Sama Veda:

1.54.8: "He is within and without, moving and yet unmoving. He is far and yet near. He is the same within all beings."
2.896.1: "He is one, the ruler of all, the king of all, the only friend of all, the guardian of the universe. He has no peer. Let Him alone be our God."

Yajur Veda:

40.8: "He has neither hand nor foot, nor eye nor ear. Yet He moves and sees, hears and understands. He is your Self, the inner controller, immortal."
40.9: "He is beyond thought, beyond speech, beyond sight. He is the Self. There is no other."

More Examples of Formless Divine in Vedas:

Rig Veda:

1.181.5: "He has neither shadow nor darkness, nor anything attached to him. From him alone all darkness has gone forth."
1.189.8: "Not by speech was He manifested, nor by mind, nor by eye. He breathes without breath, by his own inherent power."
10.90.1: "One thing exists, the sages call it by many names: Agni, Yama, Matarishvan, Indra, Varuna, Mitra." (Hints at the ultimate reality being beyond specific names or forms.)

Sama Veda:

1.154.6: "He is the firstborn of Rita (cosmic order), before heaven and earth. He upholds both heaven and earth."
2.331.1: "He is hidden in all beings, yet He is apart from all beings. He is the guardian of all beings, the indweller of all beings."

Yajur Veda:

31.1: "He is neither male nor female, nor nenter. He is not a widower, nor a barren woman. He is the youth ever ancient."
32.8: "He is smaller than the small, greater than the great. He is hidden within the heart of all beings."
40.13: "He transcends even the highest heaven, and the deepest abyss. He transcends both good and evil."

Atharva Veda:

10.8.82: "He is unborn, eternal, undecaying, ancient. He is not slain, nor does He slay. All things depend upon Him."
10.8.32: "He is one, yet He appears as many. He dwells in all things, yet He is beyond all things."

Arya Samaj -

Who founded Arya Samaj and why?

Arya Samaj was founded by Swami Dayanand Saraswati in 1875. The organisation voiced for causes like widow remarriage and education of girl children.

The metrical text is in Sanskrit, is dated to the 1st to 3rd century CE, and presents itself as a discourse given by Manu (Svayambhava) and Bhṛigu on dharma topics such as duties, rights, laws, conduct, virtues and others. The text's influence had historically spread outside India.

Structure:

The Manusmriti has a complex structure, not directly comparable to the Vedas or Upanishads. It has 12 Adhyayas (chapters) further divided into smaller sections containing verses in varying numbers.

Example:

Adhyaya 2: 149 verses divided into several subsections discussing duties of students, householder, etc.
Adhyaya 4: 269 verses divided into subsections discussing women, marriage, inheritance, etc.
Number of Verses:

Total: 2,694 verses spread across 12 chapters.

Founder/Author:

The authorship of the Manusmriti is uncertain and disputed. Traditionally attributed to Manu, a mythical figure, evidence suggests its composition by multiple authors over centuries.

Why was it written?

The Manusmriti aimed to offer a prescriptive code of conduct covering various aspects of social life, religious rituals, and legal matters. However, its interpretations and applications through history have been contentious due to potential biases and discriminatory views.

Time

Uncertain authorship: Traditionally attributed to Manu, a mythical figure, the text likely had multiple contributors over centuries. This makes pinpointing a specific creation date difficult.
Varying recensions: Different versions and interpretations of the Manusmriti exist, potentially containing additions or omissions across them.
Historical context: Evidence suggests parts of the text may have originated as early as the 8th-7th centuries BCE, while other sections were likely added as late as the 2nd century BCE.

surah Talaq 4 ayat - 'Yeh aayat 9 se 16 saal ke beech mein hai (puberty) lane wali ladkiyon ke baare mein hai. Isse yeh nahi kaha ja raha ki sadi se pahle hai nahi aaya hua ladkiyon ki shadi ho sakti hai, balki yeh bataya ja raha hai ki jab kisi ladi ka hai aata hai (jo lagbhag 9 se 16 saal ki umar ke beech hota hai), to uski sadi ho sakti hai.

isse yeh samjhaya ja raha hai ki yadi kisi ladi ka hai (puberty) aa gaya hai, to uski sadi ho sakti hai. Yeh nahi kaha ja raha ki sadi se pahle hai nahi aane wali ladkiyon ki sadi ki ja sakti hai,

सूरह तालाक 4 आयत - यह आयत 9 से 16 साल के बीच में है (प्यूबर्टी) लाने वाली लड़कियों के बारे में है। इससे यह नहीं कहा जा रहा कि सादी से पहले हैज नहीं आया हुआ लड़कियों की शादी हो सकती है, बल्कि यह बताया जा रहा है कि जब किसी लड़की का हाज आता है (जो लगभग 9 से 16 साल की उम्र के बीच होता है), तो उसकी शादी हो सकती है।

इससे यह समझाया जा रहा है कि यदि किसी लड़की का हैज (प्यूबर्टी) आ गया है, तो उसकी शादी हो सकती है। यह नहीं कहा जा रहा कि सादी से पहले हैज नहीं आने वाली लड़कियों की शादी की जा सकती है।
